There is no doubt that, by this arrangement, a considerable improvement may be made in cases where ill made burners, with wide and tall chimney-glasses are employed; but if the experiment be tried with burners and glasses proportioned in the way recommended above, it will be found that no advantage is gained, and that the maximum effect has been attained by a simpler apparatus. Before quitting the subject of burners, it may be right to advert to a frequent cause of disappointment in their performance. The perfection of an argand burner is, that the flame arising from it should appear in a continuous cylindric sheet, with a-smooth upper edge, and without forking points. This is sometimes very difficult of attainment, however carefully the jet-holes may be gauged by the pricker. There are two causes for this irregularity; one is, that, if the drill which is used be blunt, a little blaze is pushed aside by it when it is forced through the plate in which the jet-holes are pierced; this blaze adheres to the edges of the hole, and interferes with the passage of the gas, and. being unequal in its effects, renders the flame forked. The other cause is, that the inside of the burner is seldom turned true, and that the shoulder in which the...
